Power, Morals, and the Founding Fathers: Essays in the Interpretation of the American Enlightenment

By ADRIENNE KOCH, University of California, Berkeley

THESE essays on the political philosophies of five great American leaders—Franklin, Jefferson, Hamilton, John Adams, and Madison—focus on the way each sought to balance the necessary power of the central government with the moral rights of the individual citizen. Professor Koch brings a new perspective to the thought and character of these Founding Fathers, which in some cases challenges the standard interpretations of their work and in others provides fresh insights into the real meaning of what they did and said, and explores the present significance of their ideas and ideals. 162 pages, paper, $1.95
